MADE EASY.

One of the most prevalent of modern allmosts is known as indigestion. Its attendant miseries are only too familiar, but sufferers are often unaware of the causes of the trouble. Many people, in these days, are unable to live what may be termed a sufficiently careful life. Sedentary occupations abound; overwork is on the increase; worries and anxieties multiply. These and other adverse conditions do not permit the digestive system to perform its work with the requisite requirity and efficiency. The result is that the waste products of digestion are not effectively eliminated. Hence acidity, flatience, billiousness, headache, depression of spirita, and many wretched symptoms. The trouble does not always end here; there is always the danger of the sufferer becoming a chronic dyspeptic with a digestive system so impaired as to be unequal to the work necessary for the maintenance of full and abundant physical vigour. An ideal medicine for the relief and cure of the trouble is Beecham's Pills. Their cleansiag, corrective, and tonic action quickly restores the digestive powers. Week accumulations are removed—Health veturne,—Digestion is made easy—by taking BEECHAM'S PILLS.

THOMAS BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lane Sold everywhere in boxes, price 1/14 (56 pills) and 2/9 (168 pills).

ment. These principles our Empire, with the rest of the English-speaking world and with Roman Catholic France and Italy, believes to be at issue in this "world-wide saling ship, if she is passed as seaworthy, saling ship, if she is passed as seaworthy." That is the root of our British confidence. We make no such arrogant claim on the Almighty—a purely racial claim—as the Kaiser dares to make, and as his savage ancestors made on the rest of the English-speaking world and "wind-jammers" after they had been laid up for "scrap" or as hulks. The old saling ship, if she is passed as seaworthy, has many advantages. A vessel of, say, 800 to saling ship, if she is passed as seaworthy, has many advantages. A vessel of, say, 800 to saling ship, if she is passed as seaworthy to correspondents, Mr. Philip Gibbs, is that we hold all the great vide except some outlying spurs. The fact that no counter-attacks are reported to day indicates the severity of the German defeat. Mr. J. H. Thomas, who has fought on this part can have hands, all told. An official declaration may be expected before many days are past on this point. President with the series wit Wilson is in full sympathy with the Anglo-French authorities as to the urgent need of Italy and the importance of sending her all the help available. It is now recog-nised that the Italian front for the next few months may be considered.

THE MUNITION WORKERS' BONUS.

Mr. JOWETT asked the Minister of Muni-tions whether the addition of 121 per ceut. to the wages of skilled men engaged on munition work should be paid from 12th October last; and, if so, what action he proposed to take with regard to those employers who had only allowed the advance from 19th October, or any later date.

Mr. KELLAWAY, in reply, said that the bonus of 12½ per cent. was payable, not frêm 12th October, but from the beginning of the first full pay following the 12th October last. In any establishment, therefore, in which the 12th October was the beginning of full pay the bonus would not begin to accrue until the 19th October. Investigation would be made into any case in which the advance had not been allowed until a later date than the 19th October if his hon, friend would give him particulars.

the rearguards, that the moral of the Italian Armies is being rapidly restored after its heart-breaking experiences, and once that process is complete, there is it ittle doubt that the Italians, who far outnumber their present adversaries, will give a good account of themselves. It may well be that Mackensen's great stroke may ultimately turn out to have been a gigantic blunder.

As for the Petrograd revolt, while it must for the moment further embarrass the Russian Government and postpone the resumption of active operations against the external foe, it may turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Sooner or later there was bound to be a physical conflict between the sane elements in Russia and the insane—between those who recognise the need of a strong Government and those who would have every man a law to himself. Korniloff saw it, but struck too soon. Verkhovsky appears to have seen it, and was retired in consequence. At last the fact has been brought home to Kerensky himself, who now recognises that the Maximalists must be crushed or that Russia, as an organised State, will perish.

The appearance in the Temps of a detailed description of the new British warships draws attention to a curious anomaly. For months past most people in touch with naval affairs have known of the existence of these so-called "Hush" boats, but, as nothing about them has been allowed to, appear in the British Press, it was assumed that the Admiralty desired strict secrecy in regard to them.

Now, as has happened before in similar cases, the information is given with the consent of the Government in a foreign journal.

Sir Edward Carson has accepted an invitation to address a meeting of the Constitutional Club at an early date. It is understood that he may seize the opportunity to make an important declaration.

A list of one hundred questions was disposed of in the House of Commons this afternoen: Very few of them were of much importance. The Home Secretary led the House, in the absence of Mr. Lynch who suggested that General Pétain was now Commander of the Allied Forces on the western front, was told that the suggestion was unfounded. He also asked two questions regarding the defence of London against aerial raiders, but Mr. Macpherson refused to answer them on the ground that it would be against the public interest. The cheers which greeted this statement should convince the Government that it would be wise to start the censoring of questions as soon as possible.

Mr. J. MacVeagh had a long question

Sir Edward Carson has accepted an invitational club and increased, and it is most unfortunate that we should still find amongst us people who are willing to anser at them and increased, and it is most unfortunate that we should still find amongst us people who are willing to anser at them and increased. ITALIAN LOSSES.

During the week ending at midnight on November 4th 382 merchant vessels of all nationalities entered Italian ports, the total gross tonnage amounting to 388,170 tens; while 312 vessels sailed with a total gross tonnage of 380,203 tons. These figures do not include fishing emacks or small coasters. The Italian shipping losses on all seas were two steamers of less than 1,500 tons and three small sailing ships of less than 100 tons.

ANOTHER PEACE MEETING BROKEN UP.

A second Peace meeting was broken up in disorder in the Consett district last night. A large gathering at Leadgate allowed Miss Haley, of Birmingham, to speak, with interruptions for ten minutes. Then the speaker was asked where the money came from to carry on the propaganda. Miss Haley denied that it eminated from Germany, but declined to say who paid for the crusade. General uproar followed, Union Jacks being freely displayed and paterrotic songs sung. The speaker and a supporter were escorted from the building by the police, and several prominent Socialists were subjected to some rough usage.

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE ARMY.

In any establishment, therefore, in which the 12th October was the beginning of full pay the bonus would not begin to accrue until the 19th October. Investigation would be made into any case in which the advance had not been allowed until a later date than the 19th October if his hon, friend would give him particulars.

DR. FOLEY AND TEACHERS' WAR BONUS.

BONUS.

Mr. G. H. Roberts, Minister for Labour, payeaking at the opening of a recruiting hut in connection with the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps in London, said that some ten thousand women put well be utilised by the War Office. There must be a steady flow of women recruits. They were especially valuable in cooking, domestic work, clerical work, and branches of the Royal Flying Corps. The sacrifice of women would give them a share with the glorious Navy and the splendid Armies, as Knights and Ladies of the British Empire. CAPTAIN LUDLOW S. PAYNE.

Captain Ludlow Strange Payne, who died of Sunday night at Upton House, Upton, Co. Cork, was a member of an old and respected County Cork family. The eldest son of the Rev. Somers Payne, who ministered for forty years in the Diocese of Killaloe, he held a commission in the Royal Musater Fusiliers, from which he retired with the rank of Captain. On the death of his brother, Mr. Sinclair W. Payne, Captain Payne succeeded to the Upton demorae and estate. The proximate cause of the long illness from which he suffored, and which ultimately, resulted in his death, was an accident while he was staying at St. Moritz, Switzerland, two years ago. Captain Payne was very popular in the County Cork, and the aympathy of a large circle of friends will go out to Mrs. Payne and her daughters, and to her two sons, who are on active service.

An unoccupied German captive balloon drifted over Holland yesterday, and descended near Retthem. It had been riddled with bullels.

King has been a true and timely interpreter of his people's thoughts, This proclamation means two things. It means that the nation realises in its heart and soul that its life, and things dearer to it than life, are now at stake. By an impulse born of this realisation it has dropped its cloak of spiritual reserve, and is turning publicly to God. For all the urgency of the national crisis, however, the British peoples, with whom revences is an instinct, would not have dared to lay at the feet of God a cause which had in spired them with no conviction of righteous ness. Making all allowances for their human fallibility, and bearing humbly in mind all their sins of commission and omission, they have that conviction of righteous ness to-day. Civilisation is at war with Germany, and the King's subjects believe that God is on the side of the civil-sation which slowly, but surely, in recent centuries has been learning to model itself on the principles of the New Testament. TRIBUTE TO CANADIANS. After all, what are we asked to do in comparison with what is being done for us? If we do our best, it is very little in comparison, and how contemptible we shall be if the little that we can give is not given ungrudgingly. In paying a tribute to the gallantry of the Canadian corps in the latest move on the Western front agd in Gallipoli, he declared in broken tones that, when the Empire had come successfully through the condict, the rocky peninsula would be sacret ground because of the dead men who were there. The English were a generous reco. He could say that, when many of them perhaps could not, for he had no English blood, but the English was aamo of the consciousness of strength. They had shown nothing but admiration for, and had given the highest praise to the courage of the Dominion soldiers.

After adverting to the silent pressure of our Navy, the right hou, gentleman inwited a comparison between our fightling forces to-day and as they existed a year ago, and made a passing allusion to the output of guns and munitions. The number of our aeroplane engines turned cut last month was exactly three times the number turned out in October last. In September we dropped about 8,000 bombs behind the German lines, and they dropped less than 1,000 upon ours. We also dropped some 1,700 upon the west, from which enemy aeroplanes come. We did more damage to the enginning of the str. (Cheers.) We had a considerable number of machines bombing German towns, and though it was only a beyinning, more had already been done than the public realised. With, regard to the submarine campaign, the enemy had not been able to keep up the average of October, and so far in November, results for us had been more favourable than in September. (Cheers.) Petrograd is in a state of revoit, and i have ordered the immediate opening of an inquiry and the necessary arrests to be made."

"The Government will be killed rather than cease to defend the honour, security, and independence of the State."

M. Kerensky then referred to the attitude of the front towards the action of the Maximalists, and read telegrams in which the Army demanded energetic measures against excesses in Petrograd, and promised the Government its vigorous support. In conclusion, the Premier said that all elements in the country, all parties, and all classes, must take their part in the struggle against the approaching danger, and asked the Preliminary Parliament to declare immediately whether the Government could rely on it in taking decisive measures against the enemies of the country.

He believed that the time had come when employers must recognise that, if they were to have harmony, they must take their workmen more fully into their confidence as to the whole conditions under which business and trade would be carried on. Many employers were ready to do this. Everything would depend, after the war, on the increased national output of industry, and the only way of securing that was, that the workers should realise that their additional production would be accompanied, not only by its just reward, but that they should have a voice in the control of the necessary conditions of industry. He did not think that the present private profit system would give place to any system of profit-sharing, and still less to State Socialism.

The probable line of industrial development in the future would be that of increased organisation on the side of the employers, balanced by increased organisation on the side of the employer, with the State holding a watching brief on behalf of the general community. THE RISE IN PRICES.

There had been a steady rise in the prices of all the principal articles of general consumption since the war began. It was not a startling rise in 1915, but in 1916 the rise became much more marked, and in the first six months of 1917 it became really terrific; no doubt, partly in consequence of the submarine campaign.

On July 1st last the whole bulk of these articles showed a rise of 104 per cent., as compared with pre-war prices. On September 1st, which was about the time the Gevernment were forced to intervens in the drastic manner to which he had referred, they had risen to 165.8; but by October 1st, when these drastic steps had begun to have some effect, they went back to 97.3.

The Earl of SELBORNE advocated the grant of a month's holiday on full pay to all the munition workers who had been serving since the outbreak of war. It might be very difficult to arrange, but it would be one of the best investments the country ever made. There was some cause for anxiety in the weakening in parts of the trade union organisation. Safety lay in increasing the strength of the trade unions, in fully recognising their status, and in the acceptance, by unions, of the responsibility thereby assumed.

The directors had given anxious thoughts to the after-war problem, and so far as was possible were making plans in preparation for it. During the war they had abandoned the manufacture of motor cycles and bicycles. It was impossible to any what the position would be when peace conditions returned. Undoubtedly, existing stocks were lower than ever before at home and abroad, and the demand should be greater than in the pre-war period, but this would be governed entirely by the financial rosition of the mations when peace came. The company would he able to give a vastly greater output, but it would obviously take some time to change over again

Mr. F. Warwick, returning thanks after being reselected a director of the company, said he had been connected with it since its inception and through ups and downs, and it gave him the greatest possible pleasure to preside at a meeting to which a very estifactory balance sheet was presented. He thought that even apart from recent developments the company would have been a success on the old lines. because the directors had been carefully building up a position which would have enabled them to secure a considerable output.

Mr. J. Whue thought it would be remiss on the part of the abarebolders if they did not show in some tangible form appreciation of the strenuous labours of the directors during the year. To have brought the company to its present position, bearing in mind what was the state of things some years ago, represented an enormous amount of labour. He proposed that a sum of 600 guiness should be voted to the directors.

This was seconded by Mr. Wheelock, and unanimously agreed to.

The meeting afterwards passed a cordial vote of thanks to the staff and workpeople.
